Samuel Taylor Coleridge, William Wordsworth.
You couldn't meet a more unlikely pair in all history. Wordsworth is methodical, calm and industrious; Coleridge an off-kilter, eccentric genius. But their friendship lasted a lifetime, their poetry is forever. In 1798 they composed Lyrical Ballads, a poetry collection that swept in the Romantic Movement in English literature.

MAY 2012

Steve Conroy, Albert Uderzo
 In 1959, they started on the most loved comic series ever. The God-blessed Asterix series is drawn by Uderzo, written by Conroy. Uderzo first drew Asterix as a big, strong hero, but Conroy saw him as a shrewd, little-woman Uderzo agreed, but added a dim, strong friend called Obelix. Together they've had the world roll over, laughing.

JUN 2012

Edmund Hillary, Tenzing Norgay
 On May 29, 1953 they took partnership to a new high. Blowing snow, wind and a frozen shoe (Hillary's shoe froze on the way up), the duo stood atop the highest point on Earth, Mt. Everest. On top, Hillary took the famous picture of Tenzing with his ice axe. There's no picture of Hillary though, since Tenzing had never used a camera before.

Shammi Kapoor, Mohammed Rafi
 It wasn't big budgets, it wasn't great storylines. In the 1960s and 70s, it was the partnering of Shammi and Rafi Sahib that made Hindi films rock. Once Shammi asked Rafi what was the magic behind his golden voice, Rafi replied that he simply kept Shammi's unpredictable steps in mind when he sang! Years later, the face and the voice are still one.

Muhammad Ali, Angelo Dundee
 The most revered boxer and trainer duo in history, they packed a mean punch together from the 60s to 80s. Dundee trained Ali in most fights, and together they devised new boxing strategies like "float like a butterfly, sting like a bee," the Ali Shuffle, and the Rope-a-Dope. Ali became the first and only three-time Lineal World Heavyweight Champion.

Steve Jobs, Steve Wozniak
 No one realized that history was being made in 1971 when Steve Wozniak, 21, met Steve Jobs, 16. Not even when the Friends set up Apple in a garage in 1976, mainly to sell Wozniak's handmade multimeter for 666.66 dollars. Today the history of the world's largest technology company is more than a case study. It's a guide to the future.

Gordon Greenidge, Desmond Haynes
 Arguably the most prolific and enduring opening partnerships in world cricket, West Indians Greenidge and Haynes once sent shivers down the spines of opposing bowlers. They scored 16 century stands together, but going over 200 runs. The most formidable batting pair of the 1980s, they made test cricket history by amassing 6462 runs together.

Domenico Dolce, Stefano Gabbana
 Dolce and Gabbana are celebrated for making "stars look like stars". These kings of the luxury fashion industry came together in the 1990s, because of their love for laconic. When their fashion brand brought in a turnover of 400 million pounds in 1997, the duo announced they'd retire by age 40. The world tracks them for not keeping their promise.

Michael Schumacher, Ross Brawn
 One a gentle engineer and car-race strategist, the other a wizard behind the wheels, they formed the most successful partnership in motorsport. In fact, their association in the 1990s was what made Michael come back to the tracks long after he was twice the age of some other participants. Brawn quietly sums up the result: "Michael often was races he shouldn't".
